Dear Pat:

1. You are aware that our Special Air Warfare Center (SAWC) at Eglin Air Force Base has the mission of developing and testing techniques, equipment, and tactics which belong within the broad category of unconventional warfare. As an extension of this mission, we intend to investigate all avenues which might lead to additional capabilities so as to enhance our flexibility and provide a number of alternatives from which we can choose that one best suited to a particular task or objective. In my view, it is imperative that we attain such a posture and attain it soon. A first step in this direction was achieved recently when the Secretary of Defense approved our proposal for an increase in the manning and equipment of the SAWC.

2. We are very anxious to move along in exploration of ways to exploit the air capabilities now existing and to be developed in our counterinsurgency forces. You will recognize that our goal is to go beyond the conventional aspects of unconventional warfare, and, in this regard, we are aware that a great deal of experience, technical know-how, and data is available among your resources.

3. I suggest, therefore, that we would achieve mutual benefit through pursuing this matter at once. Specifically, we would like very much to borrow the services of [redacted] as a consultant; he is known to a number of our people and highly recommended. It is proposed that he be placed on a ninety day temporary duty status with the U.S. Air Force on or about 12 January 1963. All of the information on our capabilities, plans and concepts on hand in the SAWC would be made available to [redacted] and he would be a
